INTRODUCTION

This is the third volume of the York series (Part III) of the edition of the London customs accounts (TNA: PRO E122). It is comprised of the petty customs particulars of account and controlment roll for 1472/73, the petty customs controlment roll for 1473/74 and the wool customs and subsidy controlment roll for 1476/77.

Everything the reader needs to understand about the English customs system – and the peculiarities of the customs administration in London – has been detailed in the introduction to the pilot edition.¹ There are, however, some issues relating to the accounts edited here which need to be discussed.

SPANISH MERCHANTS, SUBJECTS OF KING HENRY IV OF CASTILLE AND LÉON

The first thing that is slightly out of the ordinary here is that the petty customs account for 1472/73 designates Spanish merchants as subjects of king Henry IV of Castille and Léon – De N.N., subdito (Henrici) regis Castelle et Legionum, pro ... – and not, as hitherto customary, simply as undifferentiated aliens (De N.N., alienigena, pro ...). The reason for this is Edward IV's treaty of perpetual alliance with king Henry IV of Castille and Léon, confirmed by the English monarch on 6 August 1466² and re-confirmed on 9 May 1475 shortly after Ferdinand's accession to the throne in 1474.³ Among other things, the treaty of 1466 and its successors mandated that the subjects of king Henry IV and his successors were to be treated as indigenous merchants,⁴ that is to say (1) that they would pay indigenous rates of customs on their cloth exports (rather than the alien rates); and (2) that their imports would be free of petty customs (rather than being subject to a 1.25% ad valorem duty). The commercial clauses of the treaty continued to be honored by Richard III and Henry VII, until they were abrogated by the Treaty of Medina del Campo (1489),⁵ the exemption of Spanish merchants from alien rates of customs and subsidy remaining valid to 17 August 1489,⁶ after which they were reduced to the status of all other aliens.⁷ Up to this point in time, the customs administration – including those responsible for collecting petty customs in London in 1472/73 – had to indicate the Spaniards' unique status in all accounts in order to avoid being held liable for the higher rates of customs and subsidy due from aliens by the Exchequer.

MERCHANTS OF VEERE

The petty customs accounts for 1472/73 and 1473/74 also identify the merchants of Veere (Walcheren, Prov. Zeeland in the Netherlands; engl. Camfer) as such (De N.N., burgense de Veer, pro ... for imports and miscellaneous exports; burgensis de Veere cust' for cloth exports) and this will require some explanation. In recompense of services rendered – unquestionably in aiding Edward IV's recovery of the crown of England in 1471 – the king granted the merchants of Veere/Camfer a safe conduct for trade with England on 22 Dec. 1471.⁸ In particular, Edward freed them from poundage (henceforth the merchants were liable only to pay petty customs on their merchandise at 3d/£) and reduced the petty customs charges on their cloth exports to the Hanseatic rates. However, the king required Veere to certify the names of its merchants trading with England, thus restricting the customs reductions to those named.⁹ Some of these certifications have survived,¹⁰ and they show that, indeed, Veere certified the names and cargoes of all merchants with goods on board as well as the name of the ship and the skipper. Correspondingly, the customers identified merchants from Veere in their accounts, lest they be held liable for the full alien rates on these shipments when accounting at the Exchequer.

COLOGNE

The disturbed relations between the Hanse and England between the late 1450s and the early 1470s occasioned entries in the petty customs accounts for 1472/73 and 1473/74 which will require some explanation, particularly since the suspension and re-granting of the Hanse's privileges has led to considerable confusion about the volume of English foreign trade. By § 3 of the Treaty of London,¹¹ the Hansards had been freed from the cloth customs and all subsidies from 22 Mar. 1437. While this silenced Hanseatic protests that the imposition of poundage in England ran contrary to its privileges, it had only been achieved by a diplomatic slight of hand. The treaty attempted to solve the claims to freedom from customs charges raised by both sides by allowing only such duties as had been continuously

TNA: PRO, E213/69 dated 6 Feb. 1477 names Jacob Henrici, magister et gubernator post Deum cujusdam navis dictam Barcke nomine Fleur de Liz and specifies the ship's cargo: 4 lasts of herring, 1 last of pitch, 2 bales of madder. collected for at least a century.¹² Although the diplomats who had negotiated the treaty regarded this as nothing more than a restoration of customary rights,¹³ English merchants in Prussia seized upon the formulation and demanded that they be granted any and all rights which – in the light of English demands for reciprocity¹⁴ – could possibly be interpreted into the treaty.¹⁵ In particular, they argued that the collection of poundage (Pfundzoll) and harbor duties (Pfahlgeld) in Prussia – neither more than a century old – was now prohibited by treaty.¹⁶ Needless to say, the Prussian authorities rejected these English demands out of hand. Moreover, they refused to ratify the treaty, since subsequent developments had only confirmed the dolorous experience of all Prussians: Whatever happened, it only redounded to the advantage of the English.¹⁷

English merchants trading with Prussia kept up the pressure on the crown through parliament. On 7 Feb. 1446, Henry VI accepted a petition¹⁸ submitted by the commons, threatening the Hanse with the suspension of its privileges in England as of Michaelmas 1447 if it failed to restore the rights of English merchants and to pay compensation for English losses by that date. Since no adequate response was forthcoming, the Hanse's privileges were suspended on 29 Sept. 1447.¹⁹ Until they were restored on 2 Oct. 1449 *for the tyme being*²⁰ and on 3 Dec. 1449 permanently²¹ – with the exception of merchants from Lübeck and Danzig – the Hansards were obliged to pay tunnage and poundage and custom their cloth at alien rates. Consequently, the volume of foreign trade through those customs districts visited by Hanse merchants seems to rise during the years when the Hanse did not enjoy its exemption from poundage, but this is not a real expansion of trade, since Hanseatic trade had merely ceased to be invisible.

¹³ Note, for instance, the wording of Hanserecesse II 2, No. 84 § 1, p. 85, which stipulated that all English merchants and subjects were free to visit Prussia and other Hanseatic towns and there omnibus et singulis illis liberatibus et liberis consuetudinibus uti plene debeant et gaudere, quibus unquam aliquo tempore rationabiliter usi sunt et gavis (my emphasis).

¹⁴ This was even enshrined in a statute: 5 Hen. IV, c. 7 (SR 2, p. 145), confirmed by 4 Hen. V, c. 5 (SR 2, p. 197).

Despite the restoration of the Hanse's privileges, nothing had been solved. Indeed, the situation was soon to be exacerbated by the capture of the Hanseatic Bay fleet on 23 May 1449 by English freebooters – a body blow which particularly affected Lübeck – and Lübeck's imprisonment of English diplomats travelling to Prussia on 25 July 1450, a flagrant violation of diplomatic immunity which occasioned the arrest of Hanseatic merchants in England. While Lübeck pursued an increasingly anti-English policy, Prussia – led by Danzig – became increasingly conciliatory. Once it became clear that Lübeck would not enter negotiations without a prior guarantee of compensation for the Bay fleet, the High Master suggested an extension of the safe conduct for Prussians trading with England for three years to 29 Sept. 1456 and offered the same for English merchants.²² Henry VI agreed to this on 28 Aug. 1453,²³ but refused to include Lübeck merchants. Despite this sign of mutual good will, negotiations were frustrated,²⁴ and the pressure on Lübeck grew apace. Finally, on 7 Jan. 1456 – shortly before the expiration of the English safe conduct for Prussian merchants – Lübeck agreed to Danzig's suggestion of an eight-year truce, during which merchants on both sides – including those from Lübeck – would enjoy their privileges to the full, thus enabling the re-establishment of full trading relations.²⁵ Once Lübeck's ratification had arrived in Westminster on 14 Feb. 1456, Henry VI freed all Hanseatic merchants from tunnage and poundage during the eight-year truce,²⁶ which was proclaimed on 1 Mar. 1456.²⁷

The succession of Edward IV on 4 Mar. 1461 brought a new development. London, which had been a notable supporter of the Yorkist cause, quickly began a campaign against the Hanse's liberties.²⁸ For his part, Edward IV was just as

²⁸ On 20 June 1461, the London Common Council named aldermen and commoners who were to intercede with king and council to 'resist' the Hanse's liberties: CLRO, Journal 6, f. 50^r (photographs p. 494). On 5 Nov. 1461, the Common Council assigned aldermen and anxious as his predecessors had been to force concessions from the Prussians. However, in contrast to earlier monarchs, Edward only granted the Hanse the use of its privileges for a limited period of time, making the final confirmation of its charters dependent upon the joining of negotiations intended to improve the legal position of English merchants trading with Prussia. The extensions of Hanseatic privileges are listed in the table below.

What is important is not merely the legal insecurity of the Hanseatic counter in London, always fearfully aware of the date on which its privileges would expire if the Hanse as a whole did not commence serious negotiations with the crown, but the persistence with which Edward IV used this lever to drive a reluctant Hanse to the negotiating table. Extension (1) was accompanied by a royal request to communicate the English complaints to the Hanseatic diet.²⁹ Extension (3) was granted on the condition that Hanseatic towns brought the Prussians, Lübeck and the Danes together with English delegates within a year.³⁰ Extension (5) was to expire after two years if the Hanse did not send a delegation within that time. Extension (6) was granted in order that the Hanse send an embassy to England within the period of the grant, and extension (7) contained a similar formulation.

Most of the extensions of the Hanse's privileges generated a corresponding royal mandate to the Exchequer, directing it to exonerate the customers for tunnage and commoners to 'resist' the Hanse's liberties at the next parliament (4 Nov.-21 Dec. 1461): CLRO, Journal 6, f. 76^v (photographs p. 529). The dating of this measure in Letter Book L (quinto die Marcii anno regni regis Edwardi Quarti primo) and consequently in CallB L is incorrect, as the Hanseatic sources show: Hanserecesse II 5, No. 263 § 10, p. 182; Hanserecesse II 7, No. 34 § 23, p. 97; No. 44 § 17, p. 127.

The last extension became something of a dead letter when hostilities broke out in 1468/69. This Anglo-Hanseatic war resulted from an incident in 1467, when merchants from Lynn and Bristol had murdered the Danish governor of Iceland and committed a number of other atrocities.³¹ In retaliation, the king of Denmark seized six English ships bound for Prussia – two of them from Lynn³² – while they were passing through the Sound in 1468.³³ Although king Christian made it clear that this measure was directed solely against Lynn and that other Englishmen were free and welcome to sail through the Sound,³⁴ the Nevills – as owners of one of the ships seized in the Sound³⁵ scarcely disinterested parties – were instrumental in having all Hanseatic merchants in England arrested by order of king and council.³⁶ Subsequently – on the flimsy pretext that some Danzig sailors and shippers had taken part in the capture of the English ships – suit was filed before king and council against the entire Hanse for £20,000 in compensation.³⁷ Lübeck engaged the services of the best Roman lawyer available to refute the assertion that the Hanse as a whole was responsible for the depredations of a few individuals from Danzig,³⁸ but it did no good: In November 1468, the council condemned the Hanse to pay £20,000 in compensation.³⁹ For its part, the Hanse suspended trade with England,⁴⁰ recalled all Hanseatic merchants⁴¹ and began preparations to fight England at sea.⁴²

Cologne, which for the past 20 years had followed a conciliatory policy towards England, refused to follow suit. In particular, it boycotted the Hanseatic diets⁴³ and instructed its merchants in London to found their own counter in London on 7 Dec. 1469.⁴⁴ Consequently, Cologne merchants remained in England after the Hansards from other towns had been recalled, and the Cologne rump counter claimed the protection of the Hanse's privileges. However, it found it politic to seek royal confirmation of these charters, as shown in the table below.

While the petty customs accounts for 1472/73 and 1473/74 do not refer to any of these confirmations of the Hanseatic privileges for the Cologne rump counter, they do mark up the Cologne merchants' imports and exports (De N.N., mercatore Colonie, pro ... for imports; ... mercator Colonie cust' for cloth exports), lest the Exchequer charge them for the full alien rates.

After both sides had exhausted themselves in the war,⁴⁵ peace negotiations began in Bruges and were continued in Utrecht. On 19 and 20 July 1473,⁴⁶ the English diplomats charged by Edward IV with negotiating an end to the war with the Hanse offered blanket compensation for all Hanseatic losses and injuries, which was to be reckoned against the customs due on Hanseatic merchandise.⁴⁷ After some deliberation, the Hanseatic delegation stated that, while the losses on their side in fact amounted to £200,000, they would be content to accept £25,000, provided Edward IV granted them title to the Steelyards in London and Boston and to a house in Lynn.⁴⁸ After a certain amount of haggling, which reduced the indemnity to £10,000, the Hanseatic demands were granted and embodied in the Peace of Utrecht on 28 Feb. 1474.⁴⁹

The Peace of Utrecht changed the situation of the Cologne rump counter entirely. Despite his fondness for the merchants of Cologne, Edward IV had no choice but to stick to the terms of the treaty. Consequently, he granted extension (7) only on the condition that the Cologne merchants vacate the Steelyard in London by 31 July 1474. While the Cologne merchants continued to enjoy the protection of the Hanse's privileges by virtue of extension (8), merchants from other Hanse towns were now free to trade with England according to the terms of the Peace of Utrecht, which not only restored their customs privileges as embodied in the Treaty of London (1437), but also mandated that the compensation agreed in Utrecht was to be reckoned against the customs which would have been charged on their goods (with the sole exception of staple merchandise) at the pre-war rates.⁵⁰ Consequently, Edward IV ordered the Exchequer to exonerate the customers accordingly on 14 Dec. 1474.⁵¹ This gave non-Cologne Hansards a significant advantage in trade. Worse yet for the Cologners, a companion treaty had given the Hanseatic diet control over the re-admission of Cologne's merchants to the Hanse's privileges.⁵² It was only when Cologne – after suitable gestures of atonement – was re-admitted to the Hanse by the Bremen diet in 1476⁵³ that Lübeck wrote to Edward IV in order to inform him of this fact.⁵⁴ With that, the last singularity of the Cologne rump counter disappeared into the mists of history, and Cologne merchants were once again ordinary members of the Hanseatic counter.

INDIVIDUAL EXEMPTIONS

Other individual merchants, indigenous and foreign alike, enjoyed exemption from petty customs by authority of patents which Edward IV had granted them, irrespective of whether they traded with England themselves or through indigenous or alien factors. The fashion in which the customers and the auditor marked up the particulars of account depended, so it would seem, on whether the beneficiary was indigenous or foreign. In the case of indigenous merchants such as William Purchas⁵⁵ and Geoffrey Spryng⁵⁶ the customers calculated the customs which would have been due and then noted that the corresponding sum had not been charged. For instance, when Purchase exported 216¼ cloths on 2 Sept. 1473 (ship No. 275), the customers entered Ind' cust' nichil oneratur £12 12s 3½d (the correct customs charge) in the right-hand margin. With a foreigner like the Florentine merchant (and, until 1472, the Medici representative in London and a major creditor of Edward IV) Gerard Canizian,⁵⁷ the auditor— in addition to entering Al' cust nichil oneratur in the right-hand margin as he had done with the indigenous beneficiaries of royal patents – made a sometime practise of entering per breve in the left-hand margin of the particulars, but would seem not to have been terribly consistent.⁵⁸

⁵⁶ On 10 July 1469, Spryng (Springe), in compensation for wines worth £100 which had been seized by one of the clerks of the king's chief butler (for the king's use for the royal

The customers' particulars of account were fiscal documents, forming an integral part of the procedure imposed on the customers when accounting for the crown's customs income before the Exchequer. As such, they were marked up by the auditor when he summed up the crown's income according to the various categories and tariffs. These marginated annotations form an integral part of the source and, in my view of it, deserve to be reproduced in full. I have done this in the following way. First of all, the auditor's summations of income at the end of each page or membrane (including the jottings reproducing the position of the counters on the counting table) have been reproduced as written in the account. Second, all other marginated notes (e.g. a cross or an asterisk indicating an error) are noted in the normal way in the critical apparatus. However, recording the eternally repetitive marginal notes on the tariff categories to which particular products belonged (panni ind', panni al', panni Hans', per breve etc.) call for a different solution, since including them in the critical apparatus would simply household) but, despite royal orders to this end, had not been paid, was allowed to ship 1714 woolen cloths without grain (the indigenous customs of which would have amounted to £100, allowing for rounding in the crown's favor) overseas free of customs and subsidy: CPR 1467-77, p 178.

blimp it up to no useful purpose. Consequently, I have indicated them in the text by employing superscript letters in angle brackets (e.g. ^{}De Roberto Derlyngton) and resolving these in a block at the bottom of the page (Auditor's marginated notations L: ^{}panni ind').

Diplomatic Notes on the Form of the Edition

The transcriptions of Latin documents in this edition observe the conventions of the Monumenta Germaniae Historica. The source texts (and all variants) are reproduced in normal type, while editorial intrusions are printed without exception in italics (e.g. mardre L3, in error). Unambiguous abbreviations are expanded silently, without using square brackets or italics to indicate missing letters. u/v and i/j have been regularized silently to accord with pronunciation: thus vniuersalis in the source text is rendered universalis, while 'i' is transcribed if the letter is pronounced as a vowel (imperii), and 'j' if the letter is pronounced as a consonant, i.e. like the 'y' in 'you' (majestas), even if the source writes imperij and maiestas.

Personal names and place names are transcribed exactly as written and only regularized in the Index of People and Places.

Roman numerals are reproduced as Arabic numerals, except for the sovereign's ordinal (Edwardi ivth). Arabic numerals which occur in the source texts are indicated by bold type. ob' is given as $\frac{1}{2}d$, q' as $\frac{1}{4}d$ and ob' q' as $\frac{3}{4}d$.

Following the convention in German, I have used a full stop after a number to indicate the ordinal rather than the cardinal, if a number is not written out. Thus, 27. die Januarii (p. 147) is to be understood as vicesimo septimo die Januarii, rather than viginti septem die Januarii.

When transcribing the customs accounts, I have numbered the ships consecutively in italics in square brackets. The individual paragraphs of longer texts have also been numbered in the same way. The reason for this is that the web version of the accounts and accounting materials for the Lancastrian period has no pagination, since the amount of text displayed on the screen depends on the size of the monitor and its resolution. Consequently, cross references – whether within a single document, from one document to another or in the indices – to 'page thus-and-such' are meaningless, and some internal sub-division of the text which can be linked in is unavoidable. Since some scholars will want to use the printed version of the edition and others the web edition, it is necessary to provide a common basis. Thus, if one scholar refers to ship No. 24 in the digital version of a particular account, those using the printed version will be able to find the vessel in question.

All dates and cross references in the source texts have been resolved in italics in square brackets in the text of the edition, rather than in footnotes.

If both the particulars of account and the controlment roll survive, certain variants have been suppressed to avoid inflating the text-critical apparatus. Thus, neither the substitution of 'y' in one text for 'i' in the other (e.g. Willyamson, Williamson) nor middle English plural variants (-es, -is, -ys etc.) have been noted in the apparatus criticus. In general, I have limited the notation of textual variants to those cases in which the variant spelling of a word changes the pronunciation. Thus, the variant federbeds will be noted against fetherbeds, but not fedderbeds or federbeddes against federbeds.

Punctuation is artificial and ignores all medieval full stops, commas and so forth. Since Latin is a syntactic language (like German), the eminently useful MGH convention – namely to employ punctuation (according to the pre-reform German rules) to mark up the grammatical structure of the sentence – has been employed here. I have also broken up the stylistically elegant, but utterly incomprehensible run-on Latin sentences of the source texts into manageable units.

Since we are dealing with late medieval administrative Latin, there are some cases which call for local by-laws.

First of all, there are a number of middle English words embedded in the Latin texts which have to be assigned a gender, since they are often modified by an abbreviated adjective (e.g. pro 1 parv' fetherbed). Since the adjectives are written out in a number of instances (pro 1 parvo fetherbed), I have arbitrarily imposed a masculine grammatical gender on all middle English words rather than litter the edition with apostrophes.

Second, the sources themselves are in a muddle as to whether the words custuma and subsidium are singular or plural, and usually avoid the problem by writing cust' and subs'. If a scribe does write out the one or the other word, it is almost inevitable that he will contradict himself, writing custuma in one line and custume a few lines later. This muddle is not merely the result of scribal carelessness or low standards of Latinity. In the fifteenth century, it was possible to differentiate between the collective noun (in the singular) denoting the charges to be paid and the individual sums (in the plural) which each merchant rendered. Even bearing this in mind, however, scribes are simply not consistent. Taking each individual text as a whole, I have done my best to reproduce what the scribe seemed to be thinking.

Third, the problem of the hundredweight is exceedingly vexed. While it is well known that a hundredweight can correspond to 100 lb., 112 lb. or 120 lb. avoirdupois,⁵⁹ there is no way to know which of these three values applies when a customer writes c lb. or fractions and multiples thereof. Just occasionally, when the particulars of account and the controlment roll have survived, some insight is possible, for instance if one of the two records a particular merchant's exports of pewter vessels as di' c lb. vasorum stanni and the other the same goods as lvj lb. vasorum stanni.⁶⁰ But these cases are far too rare to inspire confident generalizing. Consequently, I have decided to leave the matter unsolved, marking the text in such a way that the reader can easily reconstruct the entry. The most common notation of weight – multiples of 'c' – has not been marked up. Thus 'ijj^c lb.' is simply transcribed as 300 lb. If the thousand sign was used, the number is marked with a cross: thus, 'ij M^l lb.' is transcribed as 2000[†] lb. (but xx^c lb. as 2000 lb.) If the sign for one half is used, this is indicated by an asterisk: thus, 'di' c lb.' is transcribed as 50* lb. (but 'l lb.' as 50 lb.) And finally, if the sign for one quarter is used, this is indicated by a double cross: thus, 'c q' lb.' is transcribed as 125[‡] lb.

Finally, on a personal note, it is a sad thing indeed to find oneself finishing a volume of English documents, which, being published in Germany, in itself represents a small, but not altogether negligible link between the Continent and the Sceptered Isle, on the day after Brexit.

⁵⁹ OED s.v. hundredweight.

I
ACCOUNT
AND CONTROLMENT ROLL
4 AUG. 1472 – 29 SEPT. 1473

Particulars of account of the collectors of petty customs in London Thomas Billetour and John Brokford for the accounting period from 4 Aug. 1472 to 29 Sept. 1473, together with the controlment roll of Thomas Fowler for the period 29 Sept. 1472 to 29 Sept. 1473

L1 TNA: PRO, E122/73/34. Original particulars of account bound in Exchequer style (17 of the original 27 membranes¹ have survived, namely 7 export membranes covering the periods 19 Feb.-26 Mar. 1473 (m 1), 3-13 Apr. 1473 (m 2), 1 June-27 July 1473 (m 3-5), 27 July-2 Sept. 1473 (m 6), 2-18 Sept. (m 7) and 10 import membranes covering the periods 4 Aug.-7 Sept. 1472 (m 8-9), 16 Oct. 1472-5 Apr. 1473 (m 10-15) and 13 July-29 Sept. 1473 (m 16-17); most of the contemporaneous numbering of the membranes has rotted away, with the exception of the entries in Roman numerals in the lower left-hand corner of m 8 (16), m 9 (17), m 10 (19) and m 11 (20)). Parchment. Unsealed. Severe damage from damp (while rolled up, the account rotted from the bottom up, so that four areas of decreasing size (as one moves from the foot to the head of the membrane) have rotted away with total loss of text). The auditor has entered a dot (•) over each customs charge.

PETTY CUSTOMS CONTROLMENT ROLL 29 SEPT. 1473 – 26 MAY 1474

Controlment roll of Thomas Fowler for the issues of the petty customs in London during the period 29 Sept. 1473 to 26 May 1474 (imports from before 7 Feb. to 16 Apr. 1474)

L TNA: PRO, E122/162/8. Original controlment roll (only membranes 3 to 5 – numbered in Roman numerals (hidden in the stitching at the top of the membrane) and containing the imports from before 7 Feb. to 16 Apr. 1476 – have survived). Parchment. Unsealed. dots. Severe damage from damp and mold (the lower right-hand corner of the recto side of the membrane has rotted away, and there are holes in the parchment in the upper part of the membrane).

Dating: Although the first two membranes of the controlment roll have been lost, there can be no doubt that it was produced by Thomas Fowler, whose initials (TF) have been entered in the upper left-hand corner of each membrane, as was Fowler's practice, unique among customers and controllers of our period. Fowler was controller of petty customs in London during the following accounting periods: (a) 29 Sept. 1473-26 May 1474; (b) 26 May-29 Sept. 1474; (c) 6 Apr.-20 Nov. 1477; (d) 20 Nov. 1477-9 July 1478; (e) 9 July 1478-29 Sept. 1479; (f) 29 Sept. 1479-29 Sept. 1480; (g) 29 Sept. 1480-29 Sept. 1481; (h) 29 Sept. 1481-29 Sept. 1482; (i) 29 Sept. 1482-3 Mar. 1483; (j) 3 Mar.-9 Apr. 1483; (k) 9 Apr.-24 July 1483; (l) 24 July-29 Sept. 1483.¹ Since the surviving three membranes of E122/162/8 contain imports running from 7 Feb. to 16 Apr., accounting periods b, c, i, j, k and l can be eliminated. Furthermore, accounting periods d and g can be eliminated because Fowler's controlment roll for these years has survived intact, so that our three membranes cannot belong to them. Accounting periods e, f and h can be eliminated because after Cologne was re-admitted to the Hanse in 1476, the imports and exports of Cologne merchants – which are marked up in our account – were no longer differentiated in English customs accounts. Therefore, only accounting period a (29 Sept. 1473-26 May 1474) remains.²

² The galley captained by Marco de Pesaro (m 3) does not help dating. It is not named in the CalStP Venice, nor is there a safe conduct or other entry in the French Rolls for the galley (TNA: PRO, C76/159, C76/162, C76/163 were searched).

INDEX OF PEOPLE AND PLACES

In accordance with current usage, the first names of Englishmen and -women have been standardized to their current forms (e.g. Willelmus as William). Italian and Spanish first names are given in the 'ablative' (Andrea, Beaceo rather than Andreas, Beaceus). The first names of other foreigners, who are largely Dutch and German, are normally indexed in something approaching their modern forms, e.g. Johannes, Jacob, Herman, Hugo rather than Hugh (which would indicate an Englishman). However, it is not possible to be entirely consistent. Therefore, in a number of cases I have indexed Dutch and German merchants' first names in the current English form: e.g. Paul, William, Laurence.

Family names have been grouped, where possible, in the index, with cross references leading from the variants to the main entry, which records all variant spellings in parentheses. However, given the inconsistency of the customers' scribes, I have found it impossible to resolve all doubts and have therefore tried to steer a middle course between the splitters and the lumpers. There are cases where there can be no doubt that divergent spellings denote one and the same merchant. These have been lumped together. In the other cases (where I am all but certain that variant spellings denote one person, yet am troubled by nagging doubts, e.g. Johannes de Lewe and Johannes de Lowe) I have recorded the names separately and cross-referred the reader back and forth (see also ...).

The order of the family names in the index is phonological, so that, for instance, 'y' is alphabetized as 'i' when pronounced as a vowel. The English occupational names assigned to those responsible for land transport may require some elucidation. Hence, a 'carter' is understood to be the driver of a two-wheeled cart (in biga N.N.), a wagoner the driver of a four-wheeled wagon (in plaustra N.N.) and a packhorse driver as a transporter of goods on horseback (super x equis N.N.).

Information not given in the accounts themselves appears in square brackets. This is important in regard to the fragmentary petty customs controlment roll (II), which contains only imports from before 7 Feb. to 16 Apr. 1474 and does not generally identify merchants as 'alien' (e.g. De Paulo Derikson pro ..., rather than De Paulo Derikson, alienigena, pro ...), since all aliens paid the same rate of customs (3d/£) on their imports. The great majority of these persons turn up in the petty customs accounts for 4 Aug. 1472 to 29 Sept. 1473 and can be confidently identified. In the other cases, I have indicated their non-English status in the index by entering [alien merchant].

Place names are in small capitals.

INDEX OF SUBJECTS

The index is structured so as to serve as a glossary. Hence, the main entry is under the word as it appears in the sources (zinziber), and a cross-reference leads the reader from the modern English term to the main entry (ginger see zinziber). In addition, general catchword entries in modern English lead the reader to the individual terms (spices see ... zinziber). If a term is in Middle English, the plural form is also given (e.g. alle hafte, -s); if in Latin, the genitive (e.g. allec, ecis). More than one reference per page is not noted.
