INTRODUCTION

This is the fourth volume of the York series (Part III) of the edition of the London customs accounts (TNA: PRO, E122). It is comprised of the petty customs particulars of account and controlment roll for the period 20 Nov. 1477 to 9 July 1478 and the wool customs and subsidy particulars of account for the period 5 July 1478 to 29 Sept. 1479.

Everything the reader needs to understand about the English customs system – and the peculiarities of the customs administration in London – has been detailed in the introduction to the pilot edition.¹ There are, however, some issues relating to the accounts edited here which need to be discussed. It seems best to deal with them in chronological order, taking the petty customs account first and then turning to the wool account.

PETTY CUSTOMS ACCOUNT: GROUP EXEMPTIONS

MERCHANTS OF VEERE

The petty customs account for 1477/78 identifies the merchants of Veere (Walcheren, Prov. Zeeland in the Netherlands; engl. Camfer) as such: De N.N., (burgense) de Veer, pro ... for imports and miscellaneous exports; (burgensis) de Veere cust' for cloth exports. This will require some explanation. In recompense of services rendered – unquestionably in aiding Edward IV's recovery of the crown of England in 1471 – the king granted the merchants of Veere/Camfer a safe conduct for trade with England on 22 Dec. 1471.² In particular, Edward freed them from poundage (henceforth the merchants were liable only to pay petty customs on their merchandise at 3d/£) and reduced the petty customs charges on their cloth exports to the Hanseatic rates. However, the king required Veere to certify the names of its merchants trading with England, thus restricting the customs reductions to those named.³ Some of these certifications have survived,⁴ and they show that, indeed, Veere certified the names and cargoes of all merchants with goods on board as well as the name of the ship and the skipper. Correspondingly, the customers identified merchants from Veere in their accounts, lest they be held liable for the full alien rates on these shipments when accounting at the Exchequer.

This was precisely what Peter Draper and Henry Danvers, responsible for petty customs in London in 1477/78, did. Moreover, in the summation of crown income at the end of their account the total cloth exports of merchants from Veere (60 cloths, 3 yards) and the total receipts from cloth customs (60s 1½d) are noted (p. 148). There follows a note stating that the customers were not liable for the additional 21d/cloth (due from alien exporters) by authority of a decision of the Exchequer some nine years previously.⁵

HANSE/COLOGNE

Draper and Danvers' account also identifies Hanseatic and Cologne merchants as such. Moreover, imports and exports by both groups were entered (by the customers) and marked up (by the auditor) quite distinctly from one another. In order to illustrate this, it is best to take a specific example, here from the imports (p. 3).

De Hermano Ryng, [mercatore] Colonia, pro 3 balis fustian. Precii £36.. cust' 9s
De Matheo Pelche, Hans, pro 200 bowstavis, 2 last [et] 4 barellis trane. Precii
£20

Et pro uno strawe cere continente 9 quintallos cust'

Ryng's fustian was customed at the usual rate (3d/£) which applied to all aliens, whether Hanseatic or not. Accordingly, the auditor entered valoris al' in the left-hand margin against this entry. The customers treated Pelche's merchandise quite differently, indicating only the price (£20) or quantity (9 quintals of wax), but not entering any customs charge. Moreover, the auditor marginated per breve against both entries and valoris Hans against the first entry and cere Hans against the second.

In the summary of receipts at the foot of the membrane (p. 4), Hanseatic imports of merchandise and wax were entered separately from those of other aliens (see below). Moreover, the customers' original entry read valoris Hans £852 5s cust' nichil, but the auditor struck the word nichil through and entered the correct customs charge (£10 13s 1½d). Finally, the customers' summary of the total receipts on the recto side of the membrane (summa partis) recorded only the money due from non-Hanseatic aliens (£8 2s 11d).

Summa partis	valoris alienigenarum £651 13s 4d	cust' £8 2s 11d	Summa partis £8 2s 11d
	valoris Hans £852 5s	cust' £10 13s 1½d
	cere Hans 118 quintalli	cust' 118s

The same procedure was employed for Hanseatic exports. The customers recorded the numbers of cloths or the value of merchandise exported by Hansards, noted that the Hanseatic cloth customs rates applied (Hans cust'), but entered nothing further. In the summary of income at the end of the membrane, they entered the total numbers of the various kinds of cloth and the total value of merchandise exported by Hanseatic merchants, followed by cust' nichil.

The summary of crown income at the end of the account (p. 148) followed the same procedure. The value of Hanseatic imports and exports, the number of imported quintals of wax and the numbers of cloths of various sorts were entered on separate lines, followed in every instance by cust' nichil. In each case, the auditor struck nichil through and entered the correct customs charge, noting that Hanseatic merchandise had been 'charged' at Hanseatic (and not at the higher alien) rates by authority of a decision of the Exchequer.⁶

By way of contrast, the customers entered Cologne merchants' imports and exports in the manner hitherto customary for Hansards, the only differences being (1) that, in the import section of the account (m. 1-7, p. 1-67), they were identified as Cologners, although they paid the same rate of customs (3d/£) as all other aliens (see the entry for Herman Ryng supra); and (2) that, in the export section of the account (m. 8-18, p. 67-146), their cloth exports (customed at the Hanseatic rates) were indicated as Cologne exports (e.g. in ship no. 147, p. 68, see below).

De Petro Sebright pro 1 bala cum 16 pannis sine grano..... Col' cust' 16s

In the summation at the end of the membrane (e.g. p. 71), Cologne cloth exports were entered separately from those of other aliens and other Hansards, and the customers consistently included a customs charge. Finally, in the summary of crown income at the end of the account (p. 148), there were separate entries for Cologne merchants' cloth exports,⁷ followed by a note that they were charged at the Hanseatic rate by a decision of the Exchequer.⁸

When the auditor reviewed the account, he marginated valoris Colon' against the Cologne merchants' imports, in order to distinguish them from other aliens' goods, and panni sine grano (or de dimidio grano) Colon' against their cloth exports.

Therefore, it would seem that the customers charged customs on the Cologner's imports and exports, but not on those of other Hansards. These peculiarities are the direct result of the war at sea between England and the Hanse (1469-73), in which Cologne remained neutral and continued to trade with England, maintaining its own rump counter in the London Steelyard. Indeed, Cologne claimed the continued protection of the Hanse's privileges, but did find it politic to seek confirmation of these charters from Edward IV, albeit henceforth only for merchants of Cologne.⁹

After both sides had exhausted themselves in the war at sea,¹⁰ peace negotiations began in Bruges and were continued in Utrecht. On 19 and 20 July 1473,¹¹ the ⁷ No separate entry for the customs charged on Cologne merchants' imports was necessary here, since they paid the same rate of petty customs as all other aliens, namely 3d/£.

English diplomats charged by Edward IV with negotiating an end to the war offered blanket compensation for all Hanseatic losses and injuries, which was to be reckoned against the customs due on Hanseatic merchandise.¹² After some deliberation, the Hanseatic delegation stated that, while the losses on their side in fact amounted to £200,000, they would be content to accept £25,000, provided Edward IV granted them title to the Steelyards in London and Boston and to a house in Lynn.¹³ After a certain amount of haggling, which reduced the indemnity to £10,000, the Hanseatic demands were granted and embodied in the Peace of Utrecht on 28 Feb. 1474.¹⁴

The Peace of Utrecht changed the situation of the Cologne rump counter entirely, since Cologne had remained neutral in the war between England and the remainder of the Hanse and, indeed, had continued to trade with England. Despite his fondness for the merchants of Cologne, Edward IV had no choice but to stick to the terms of the treaty. Consequently, he only granted an extension of the Cologne privileges on 8 Apr. 1474, valid from 10 Apr. to 31 July 1474,¹⁵ on the condition that the Cologne merchants vacate the Steelyard in London by 31 July 1474. While the Cologne merchants continued to enjoy the protection of the Hanse's privileges by virtue of a further extension Edward granted on 19 July 1474, valid from 1 Aug. 1474 at pleasure,¹⁶ merchants from other Hanse towns were now free to trade with England according to the terms of the Peace of Utrecht, which not only restored their customs privileges as embodied in the Treaty of London (1437), but also mandated that the compensation agreed in Utrecht was to be reckoned against the customs and subsidies which would have been charged on their goods (with the sole exception of staple merchandise) at the pre-war rates.¹⁷ Consequently, Edward IV ordered the Exchequer to exonerate the customers accordingly on 14 Dec. 1474.¹⁸ This gave non-Cologne Hansards a significant advantage in trade. Worse yet from the perspective of Cologne's traders, a companion treaty had given the Hanseatic diet control over the re-admission of Cologne's merchants to the Hanse's privileges in England (among other places).¹⁹ It was only when Cologne – after suitable gestures of atonement – was re-admitted to the Hanse by the Bremen diet in 1476²⁰ that Lübeck wrote to Edward IV in order to inform him of this fact.²¹

With that, the Cologne rump counter disappeared (at least formally) into the mists of history, but Cologne merchants were not yet ordinary members of the Hanseatic counter, since disputes about the return of certain documents and weapons dragged on until 11 Nov. 1478, when they were settled by an agreement between the London counter and representatives of the merchants of Cologne.²² Shortly thereafter, Edward IV released the Cologne traders from all royal claims to petty customs and tannage and poundage on their imports and exports via London and Sandwich.²³

In the meantime, however, the customers were on the hook for the corresponding sums. Consequently, they continued to identify Cologne merchants as such their accounts. Although Cologne merchants enjoyed all Hanseatic tariffs, they were obliged to pay customs, while other Hansards paid nothing at all, the customs and subsidy charges on their merchandise being reckoned against the indemnification agreed in Utrecht.

As may be imagined, this arrangement occasioned a substantial amount of careful bookkeeping. First of all, the crown, being worried that non-Hansards might take illicit advantage of the concession made in the Peace of Utrecht,²⁴ required the Steelyard to certify the names of genuine, non-Cologne Hanseatic merchants to the customers, who then handed these littere certificadorie (together with their particulars of account) into the Exchequer so that the auditor could check the names of the merchants in the certification against the names of those claiming to be Hansards in the customs account.²⁵ At the end of the accounting period, the customers also drew up an indenture with representatives of the Hanseatic counter (Appendix I 2), recording the amount of customs the Hansards had withheld by the terms of the Peace of Utrecht and the subsequent royal mandates. Finally, the Exchequer had to keep careful track of just how much money the Hansards had retained since issuance of their patent on 14 Dec. 1474. The record of the final hearing contains a long list of such sums retained as of even date by Hanseatic merchants trading with London, Hull, Ipswich, Lynn, Sandwich and Boston, totalling £1178 2s, to which a further £273 3s 1d was added from the London petty customs account for 1477/78 once the Exchequer granted the customers' petition for exoneration.

SPANISH MERCHANTS FROM THE (BASQUE) PROVINCE OF GUIPÚZCOA

The petty customs account records a substantial number of merchants exporting cloth who are identified as inhabitants of the Basque province of Guipúzcoa (De N.N., homine et mercatore province Guipuscoe, pro ...) and are said to have paid 'Spanish customs' (Hispan' cust') on their cloth exports (ships 204, 209, 319-20, 324, 329, 334, 355, 373-6), although the customers never recorded a specific amount of money paid by these merchants. Similarly, the summaries of receipts at the end of the membrane recorded the numbers of cloths of various types exported by these merchants, but added cust' nichil. This procedure was repeated in the summary of total receipts (p. 148) at the end of the account:

Panni Hisp' sine grano 745 panni, 8 verge cust' nichil

Panni Hisp' de dimidio grano 8½ panni cust' nichil

Panni Hisp' in grano 18 panni, 4½ verge cust' nichil

However, the auditor struck through the word nichil here and entered the correct amount of customs (£43 9s 7d; 14s 10½d; 42s 5¼d respectively), charging the customers for these cloths at the indigenous rates (14d, 21d, 28d per cloth respectively). This will require some explanation.

First of all, these merchants profited from Edward IV's treaty of perpetual alliance with king Henry IV of Castille and León, confirmed by the English monarch on 6 August 1466²⁶ and re-confirmed on 9 May 1475 shortly after Ferdinand's accession to the throne in 1474.²⁷ This treaty mandated among other things that the subjects of king Henry IV and his successors were to be treated as indigenous merchants,²⁸ that is to say (1) that they would pay indigenous rates of customs on their cloth exports (rather than the alien rates); and (2) that their imports would be free of petty customs (rather than being subject to a 1.25% ad valorem duty). The commercial clauses of the treaty continued to be honored by Richard III and Henry VII, until they were abrogated by the Treaty of Medina del Campo (1489),²⁹ the exemption of Spanish merchants from alien rates of customs and subsidy remaining valid to 17 August 1489,³⁰ after which they were reduced to the status of all other aliens.³¹

Up to this point in time, the customs administration – including those responsible for collecting petty customs in London in 1477/78 – had to indicate the Spaniards' unique status in their accounts in order to avoid being held liable by the Exchequer for the higher rates of customs and subsidy due from aliens. However, in 1477/78, the petty customers simply never recorded the Spaniards' import cargoes, since these merchants had been free of petty customs for long enough that this was superfluous. Spanish imports are simply invisible in this account.

³⁰ The tunnage and poundage account for the following year, 1488/89 (TNA: PRO, E356/23 m 37) states the cut-off date explicitly and cites TNA: PRO, E368/260 Status et visus compotorum Michaelmas m 8 as the authority for the Spaniards' exemption up to that date.

Exports were a different matter. While Spaniards were free of petty customs for exports of miscellaneous merchandise (which, consequently, remained invisible), they were liable to pay indigenous rates of custom on their cloth exports. Here, the merchants from the Basque province profited from a further concession by Edward IV. By patent letters dated 9 Aug. 1476,³² whose beneficiaries are specified as all merchants from the province Guipúzcoa and from the entire kingdom of Castille and León, the king had remitted half the amount due for customs and subsidy on imports and exports via London, Sandwich, Southampton and Bristol, this being reckoned against the 11,000 crowns (calculated at 3s 4d each) due in recompense for English attacks before 28 May 1474 on the men of the maritime provinces of the kingdom of Castille and León.

Consequently, the auditor initially charged the customers with cloth customs at the full indigenous rates on the Guipúzcoans' cloths (£46 6s 10½d). When they appeared before the full Exchequer for the final hearing on their account, the customers petitioned for exoneration for half the cloth customs (£23 3s 5¼d), citing in support of their case (1) the king's patent of 9 Aug. 1476³³ and the corresponding privy seal mandates directed to the customers³⁴ and the Exchequer³⁵ and finally proffering the indenture drawn up with the Guipúzcoan merchants on 13 July 1478 (Appendix II 1). The Exchequer granted the petition without further ado.

PETTY CUSTOMS ACCOUNT: INDIVIDUAL EXEMPTIONS

JOAN FOWLER

Beginning with ship no. 153 (p. 76), departing London on 20 Nov. 1477, Joan Fowler, the widow of the former chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster Richard Fowler and executrix of his will, is recorded as having exported a total of some 2917 cloths and £40 of Welsh narrowcloth through various indigenous and alien factors. A charge for customs is never indicated and the entries all end with Al' (or Ind') cust', depending on whether the factor was English or foreign. When the auditor marked up the account, he entered per breve in the left-hand margin against all these exports. In the summaries of receipts at the end of the membrane, these exports were totaled and the customs due given as nil, for instance on p. 79:

*Panni Johanne Fowler indigene per factores suos indigenas sine grano 154
panni cust' nichil*

³² CPR 1467-77, p. 599-600. Cf. CPR 1467-77, p. 480 (Foedera (O), 11, p. 841-2) dated 19 Dec. 1474. On this subject, see Childs, Anglo-Castilian Trade, p. 56.

³³ CPR 1467-77, p. 599-600. The customers referred, of course, to the Exchequer's copy (TNA: PRO, E159/253 Recorda Michaelmas m 3).

³⁵ TNA: PRO, E159/252 Brevia directa baronibus Trinity m 20.

Panni ejusdem Johanne per factores suos alienigenas sine grano 116 panni, 9 virge cust' nichil

In the final summary of receipts for the entire account (p. 148), the customers repeated this procedure:

Panni Johanne Fowler indigene sine grano per factores suos indigenas 1765½ panni, 4 verge cust' nichil

Panni ejusdem Johanne Fowler indigene sine grano per factores suos alienigenas 1151½ panni, 10 verge cust' nichil

Valor dicte Johanne Fowler indigene per factores alienigenas £40 cust' nichil

However, the auditor struck nichil through here and entered the appropriate charges, calculating cloth customs at 14d per cloth in the case of indigenous factors and at 33d per cloth for alien factors.

These anomalies trace their origin to a 'loan' of £2207 17d granted to Edward IV by Richard Fowler on 16 Feb. 1475 (Appendix III 1), which the monarch paid by issuing a patent on 21 June 1475,³⁶ permitting Fowler (or, in the event of his death, his executors) to export – either by himself or through indigenous or alien factors – wool, cloth, tin, lead or other merchandise to the Mediterranean (in the case of wool) or anywhere else (in the case of the other products) via London, Sandwich or Southampton and import return cargoes from these areas, all without payment of customs and subsidies, until he was repaid. When Fowler died on 3 Nov. 1477,³⁷ his widow Joan, named in his will as one of the executors, swung rapidly into action³⁸ and persuaded Edward IV to issue mandates (1) to the London petty customers (24 Nov. 1477) directing them to permit her to trade according to the terms of the patent and (2) to the Exchequer, directing it to exonerate the customers for any sums retained by authority of the patent (26 Nov. 1477: Appendix III 2). When they appeared before the Exchequer for final accounting, the customers presented the indenture they had drawn up with Joan on 12 July 1478, recording her factors' exports (Appendix III 3). They also proffered Edward's mandate directed to them, retaining it for later use, since the sum owing to Joan had yet to be paid in full and Danvers, at least, remained in office. Finally, they referred the Exchequer to the king's mandate. The Exchequer granted their petition for exoneration.

LODOWICUS BRUETALLUS

The cloth exports of the alien merchant Lodowicus Bruetallus (ships 176, 180-1, 205, 210-1) were recorded and marked up in the same manner. A charge for customs is never indicated and the entries all end with Al' cust'. In the summaries of receipts at the end of the membrane, these exports were totaled and the customs due given as nil. When the auditor came to mark up the account, he entered per breve in the left-hand margin against all of these entries.

³⁶ CPR 1467-77, p. 532.

³⁷ HBC p. 150.

³⁸ Fowler's will was proved on 19 Nov. 1477: TNA: PRO, PROB 11/6/445. This gave his widow and executrix the legal authority to trade under the terms of the patent granted to her deceased husband.

In the final summary of receipts (p. 148) this procedure was repeated. However, the auditor struck nichil through here and entered the appropriate charge, calculating cloth customs at 33d per cloth, since Lodowicus had exported through alien factors.

The explanation is simple, although there is one oddity which needs to be addressed. By patent dated 30 May 1475, Edward IV had licensed Bruetallus (or, in the event of his death, his executors) to export (either by himself or through his indigenous or alien factors and attorneys) 1000 broadcloths via London without payment of customs and given corresponding instructions to the collectors of the petty customs in London (Appendix IV 1) and the Exchequer on 20 Nov. 1477 (Appendix IV 2).

However, the corresponding patent letter is not to be found.³⁹ While one might have expected it not to have been recorded on the patent rolls (which is indeed the case), it is a singular fact that it is not to be found where the customers say it was copied. The record of the final hearing on their account⁴⁰ states that the customers referred the Exchequer to the enrolment of this patent in memorandis hujus scaccarii, videlicet inter recorda de termino sancti Hillarii eodem anno [15 Edw. IV] rotulo 17° ex parte alterius rememoratoris. This should be E159/252 Recorda Hilary m 17, but the patent letter is not to be found there or anywhere else in the Recorda for 15 Edw. IV. This is very unusual, and I have no explanation for it.

Nonetheless, the customers presented the king's mandates directed to them (Appendix IV 1) and the Exchequer on 20 Nov. 1477 (Appendix IV 2) and the indenture they had drawn up with Bruetallus on 14 July 1478 recording his exports of 232½ cloths and 10 yards between 20 Nov. 1477 and 9 July 1478 (Appendix IV 3), and the Exchequer granted their petition for exoneration for the corresponding amount of cloth customs (£32 6¼d at the alien rate of 33d per cloth) with which the auditor had charged them.

PETER BEAULIEU

The imports and exports of the alien merchant Peter Beaulieu (ships 68; 206, 247-51, 265-7, 274, 279, 283, 291) were recorded and marked up in the same manner. A charge for customs is never indicated and all entries end with Precii (followed by the amount) or Al' cust'. In the summaries of receipts at the end of the membrane, these exports were totaled and the customs due given as nil. When the auditor came to mark up the account, he entered per breve in the left-hand margin against all of these entries.

In the final summary of receipts (p. 148) the customers repeated this procedure. However, the auditor struck nichil through and entered the appropriate charge, calculating cloth customs at 33d per cloth, since Peter had exported through alien factors.

The explanation is simple, although there is, once again, an oddity which needs to be addressed. By patent dated 14 Mar. 1475 (Appendix V 1), Edward IV had granted – in recompense for various depredations wreaked upon duke of Brittany's subjects by the king's subjects in Fowey – license to Peter de Beaulieu, John le Bigot, John Giquel and William Cadet to import and export (either by themselves or through their indigenous or alien factors, attorneys and deputies) each year for the ensuing four years via any port in England merchandise (excepting staple merchandise) whose customs and subsidy amounted to 156 marks 3s 4d (£104 3s 4d) without payment of customs, provided they imported no more than 125 tuns of Gascon wine and recorded their imports and exports in indentures drawn up with the customers. However, the corresponding mandates to the customers (Appendix V 2) and the Exchequer (Appendix V 3) specify the amount of customs and subsidy Beaulieu was allowed to retain yearly as 218 marks 10s (£145 16s 8d). In the final hearing on the account,⁴¹ the Exchequer proceeded from the second, higher figure with no explanation being given.

Acting as if this discrepancy did not exist, the customers requested exoneration for the customs with which the auditor had charged them for Beaulieu's goods (£66 13s 4d), stating that this was part of the money which was to have been retained in the third of the said four years and referring the Exchequer to the king's patent (Appendix V 1), to the mandates directed to the customers themselves on 7 Dec. 1477 (Appendix V 2) and to the Exchequer (Appendix V 3) and finally presenting the indenture they had drawn up with Beaulieu and other merchant subjects of the duke of Brittany on 14 July 1478, recording imports and exports via London between 20 Nov. 1477 and 9 July 1478 whose customs amounted to £66 13s 4d (Appendix V 4). The petition was granted.

ANELUS (AGNELUS, ALANUS) PERICO

The case of Anelus Perico is only superficially similar to those already discussed. To be sure, his exports (ship 350, p. 137) were recorded and marked up in the same manner. A charge for customs was not indicated and the entry ends with Al' cust'. In the summaries of receipts at the end of the membrane, these exports were totaled, but owing to damage to the account, the amount given as due from customs is illegible. When the auditor came to mark up the account, he entered Per breve Agneli super ... 32 ... in the left-hand margin.

In the final summary of receipts in their particulars of account (p. 148) the customers entered the following:

Panni Aneli Perico alienigene sine grano 26 panni longi, quolibet panno continente 32 vergas sine grano cust' nichil

Panni ejusdem Aneli Perico alienigene sine grano 18 panni curti sine grano cust' nichil

As in the other cases discussed above, the auditor struck nichil through here and entered the appropriate charges (£4 15s 4d; 49s 6d), converting longcloths (32 yards long) to shortcloths (24 yards long) and calculating cloth customs at the alien rate of 33d per cloth.

Just how unique the case was is revealed by the record of the final hearing. There was no patent letter. Rather, as the mandates to the customers (Appendix VI 1) and the Exchequer (Appendix VI 2) dated 11 May 1478 indicate, Perico had packed a total of 26 longcloths and 18 shortcloths in three bundles in London on 10 Dec. 1477, intending to transport them to Southampton by land and distribute them among the galeymen of the Seint Irasmus of Naples for their clothing. Since these cloths were not intended for sale, the implicit argument runs, they were not subject to customs. Nevertheless, the customers entered them in the bokes of pakkyng of clothes in the seide porte of London' as having been packed (for commercial export) on 10 Dec. 1477 and refused to allow Perico to transport the cloth to Southampton without payment of customs, a situation only remedied by Edward IV's issuance of privy seal mandates to the customers and the Exchequer some six months later.

At the final hearing of their account before the full Exchequer, the customers requested exoneration for the customs with which the auditor had charged them for Perico's cloth (£7 4s 10d),⁴² referring to the privy seal mandate directed to them and the collectors of tunnage and poundage in London on 11 May 1478 (Appendix VI 1) and to the corresponding mandate directed to the Exchequer on the same day (Appendix VI 2). The Exchequer granted the petition.

WOOL ACCOUNT

The particulars of account for wool present a few small mysteries which need to be cleared up. Despite exports of more than 7000 sacks of wool (or their equivalent in woollfells) the account records a comparatively modest amount of income from customs, subsidy, cocket fees and Calais duties. Indeed, the customers marginated cust' subs' nichil per breve against the vast majority of entries. Their summaries of each ship are stereotypically phrased cust' et subs' attingente ad summam [amount] nichil per breve both for wool and woollfells. Finally, the summary of crown income at the end of the account (p. 256) contains separate entries for exports by members of the staple company to Calais before and after 6 Apr. 1479, each entry ending with cust' et subs' attingencia ad summam [amount] iidem mercatores in manibus suis propriis retinent et habent or some variant thereof.

For an explanation of these peculiarities we have to turn back to the king's massive debts owing to the staple company for its expenditures in the defense of Calais, which had built up to over £40,000 in the last years of Henry VI's reign and the first years of Edward IV's.⁴³ Splitting up the royal receipts from the wool customs and subsidy into separate accounts earmarked for the wages and victuals of the Calais garrison and for the repayment of the king's debts having proved impracticable, Edward (by a parliamentary act of retainer)⁴⁴ simply handed the whole show over to the staple company, allowing it to retain all receipts from customs and subsidy on wool exported to Calais after 6 Apr. 1466, but making it responsible for all expenses relating to its defense (set at £10,022 4s 8d per annum). Any excess of receipts over expenses was to be reckoned against the king's debts. This ⁴² This is the correct charge for cloth customs on 26 longcloths and 18 shortcloths. However, the record of the hearing refers repeatedly and consistently to 21 longcloths and 18 shortcloths, as, indeed, did the customs account. The discrepancy is never explained.

⁴³ See the introduction to volume III 1, p. xv-xvii.

arrangement was intended to be temporary, remaining in force only as long as it took to pay off the royal obligations, but it turned out to be all but permanent, being extended in 1472 for 16 years,⁴⁵ in 1488 for a further 16 years,⁴⁶ and in 1504⁴⁷ and again in 1515 for 20 years from 6 Apr. 1516.⁴⁸

This scheme made good administrative and fiscal sense. It was much simpler for the Exchequer to account once a year (the accounting period running from 6 Apr. to 6 Apr.) with the mayor of the staple (who by virtue of the act of retainer became ex officio treasurer of Calais) for all receipts from customs and subsidy on staplers' exports of wool and woolfells from the whole of England rather than deal with each customs district separately.⁴⁹ Moreover, the arrangement meant that the money was paid directly to the mayor/treasurer in Calais, where it could be expended on soldiers' wages and defensive works without further ado. However, the crown was rightly worried about the danger of massive smuggling and insisted on a certain amount of checking up. Consequently, the customers were still required to weigh the wool and count the woolfells prior to shipment and record these figures in their accounts, aside from drawing up indentures with representatives of the staple company recording these exports.

However, in 1478/79, the London wool customers did not have anything at all to do with the money owing for customs and subsidy on the staple company's exports to Calais. As the enrolled account states,⁵⁰ the customers did not respond for the ⁴⁵ The corresponding act of parliament was dated 8 Feb. 1473 (RP 6, p. 55-61) and was copied into the Exchequer's records: TNA: PRO, E159/251 Recorda Hilary m 22.

⁴⁸ Statute 7 Hen. VIII c. 10 (SR III, p. 199-202).

⁴⁹ Acute observers will have noted that this only seems to be the case from 1474 onwards, when the first enrolled accounts state in the section devoted to crown receipts that the customers do not respond for wool customs and subsidy by authority of the parliamentary act of 7 Feb. 1473 and the king's corresponding mandates to the customers of 12 July 1473: Stuart Jenks (ed.), The Enrolled Customs Accounts (PRO, E356, E372, E364) 1279/80-1508/09 (1523/24) Part 10: E356/22 (List and Index Society 344), London 2012, No. 6, 87, 108, 141, 161, 251, 271, 294. Before that, it would seem on the face of it that the customers were charged with the corresponding sums. However, the change in administrative procedure is more apparent than real. In the expenditure section of the enrolled accounts before 1474, the customers are exonerated for all sums charged against their account by the auditor for customs and subsidy on the wool exports of the members of the staple company by authority of the king's patent to the staple company dated 13 Dec. 1466. The enrolled customs account then makes a cross-reference to the corresponding account, enrolled on the foreign account rolls (TNA: PRO, E364) or the pipe rolls (TNA: PRO, E372), of the mayor and merchants of the Calais staple company for all customs and subsidies on all of their exports of wool and woolfells from England to Calais in one of the parliamentarily mandated accounting periods running from 6 Apr. of one year to the following 6 Apr. Therefore, the customers were only formally charged with these sums up to 1474, and the Exchequer dispensed with this formality thereafter.

customs and subsidy (£10,211 10s 8¼d) due on the 3319½ sacks, 20 cloves of wool and 428,611 woolfells (= 1785¾ sacks, 31 woolfells) exported via London to Calais between 5 July 1478 and 6 Apr. 1479 by members of the staple company. As authority for this, the enrolled account cites the act of parliament dated 8 Feb. 1473,⁵¹ the corresponding royal mandate to the customers dated 12 July 1473⁵² and eight indentures drawn up by the customers and the representatives of the staple company recording their exports in each eskipacio.⁵³ It was, the enrolled account states, the responsibility of the mayor and merchants of the Calais staple company to respond to the crown for this sum, and they did so in the Foreign Accounts.⁵⁴ Similarly, the customers also did not respond for the £3338 10s 3¼d of wool customs and subsidy due on the staplers' exports of 1038 sacks, 17 cloves of wool and 151,423 woolfells (= 630¾ sacks, 43 woolfells) between 6 Apr. and 29 Sept. 1479. The authority given is identical, two indentures sufficed to document these exports, and the mayor and merchants responded, again, in the Foreign Accounts.⁵⁵ It was the logical consequence of this that the final hearing of the customers' account before the full Exchequer⁵⁶ did not even mention the staple company's exports.

WILLIAM HERIOT

The customers' record of the exports by William Heriot, citizen and alderman of London, and his factors in the king's ship le Antony (no. 42, p. 185-7), amounting to 282 sacks and 17 cloves of wool, does not contain any mention of customs paid. Rather, each entry merely sums up the amount of wool (e.g. p. 187: Summa 217 sacci, 19 clavi lane in 534 pokes). However, the customers' summary of the receipts for the ship, which originally read

Summa hujus navis	sacci lane 282 sacci, 17 clavi	cust' £94 2s 2¼ subs' £470 10s 10d deveria £9 8s 2¾d

was amended by the auditor to read

Note that the account proceeds customs district by customs district, starting with London, and then chronologically by the date of each indenture, which is usually dated one day after the departure of each of the eight eskipaciones, the exception being the eighth fleet (p. 229), which the customs account states to have departed on 27 Mar. 1479. The foreign account seconds the date of departure, but dates the corresponding indenture to 30 May 1479.

the original figures being struck through and the revised figures being interlined above them. Finally, the summation of crown receipts for the whole account (p. 256) repeated this procedure, the lower figures being struck through and the revised figures being interlined, although the revised figure for Calais duties (originally nichil) was only £9 8s 2¾d. The account itself gives no explanation for this.

The enrolled account,⁵⁷ however, does. On 26 July 1478, as it indicates, the king had licensed Heriot to export up to 300 sacks of wool (or their equivalent in wool cloth) in the king's own ship le Antony via London to the Mediterranean, paying only indigenous rates of custom and subsidy, giving him 15 months (from 1 July 1478) to pay and releasing him from the obligation to bring bullion into the London mint (Appendix VII 1). When they appeared before the full Exchequer for their final account, the customers accordingly petitioned for exoneration for £527 4½d with which the auditor had charged them for customs, subsidy and Calais duties on Heriot's wool, reckoning the charges at the alien rates,⁵⁸ citing the king's patent of 26 July 1478 and the corresponding mandates to themselves (dated 19 Nov. 1478: Appendix VII 2) and to the Exchequer (dated 25 Nov. 1478: Appendix VII 3) and proffering the indenture they had drawn up with Heriot on 1 Sept. 1478 (Appendix VII 4). The Exchequer granted their petition in all but one point. The customers remained on the hook for Calais duties (£9 8s 2¾d) until Edward IV directed the Exchequer to exonerate them for this charge too on 19 June 1480 (Appendix VII 5).

The customers' particulars of account were fiscal documents, forming an integral part of the procedure imposed on the customers when accounting for the crown's customs income before the Exchequer. As such, they were marked up by the auditor when he summed up the crown's income according to the various categories and tariffs. These marginated annotations form an integral part of the source and, in my view of it, deserve to be reproduced in full. I have done this in the following way. First of all, the auditor's summations of income at the end of each page or membrane (including the jottings reproducing the position of the counters on the counting table) have been reproduced as written in the account. Second, all other marginated notes (e.g. a cross or an asterisk indicating an error) are noted in the normal way in the critical apparatus. However, recording the eternally repetitive marginal notes on the tariff categories to which particular products belonged (panni ind', panni al', panni Hans', per breve etc.) call for a different solution, since including them in the critical apparatus would simply blimp it up to no useful purpose. Consequently, I have indicated them in the text by employing superscript letters in angle brackets (e.g. ^{<A>}De Roberto Derlyngton) and resolving these in a block at the bottom of the page (Auditor's marginated notations L: <A> panni ind').

⁵⁸ As the account states, they accepted freely (gratis) charges at the indigenous rates, which came to £564 13s 1¼d.

The problem of the hundredweight is exceedingly vexed. While it is well known that a hundredweight can correspond to 100 lb., 112 lb. or 120 lb. avoirdupois,⁵⁹ there is no way to know which of these three values applies when a customer writes c lb. or fractions and multiples thereof. Just occasionally, when the particulars of account and the controlment roll have survived, some insight is possible, for instance if one of the two records a particular merchant's exports of pewter vessels as di' c lb. vasorum stanni and the other the same goods as lvj lb. vasorum stanni.⁶⁰ But these cases are far too rare to inspire confident generalizing. Consequently, I have decided to leave the matter unsolved, marking the text in such a way that the reader can easily reconstruct the entry. The most common notation of weight – multiples of 'c' – has not been marked up. Thus 'ij^c lb.' is simply transcribed as 300 lb. If the thousand sign was used, the number is marked with a cross: thus, 'ij M^l lb.' is transcribed as 2000[†] lb. (but xx^c lb. as 2000 lb.) If the sign for one half is used, this is indicated by an asterisk: thus, 'di' c lb.' is transcribed as 50* lb. (but 'l lb.' as 50 lb.) And finally, if the sign for one quarter is used, this is indicated by a double cross: thus, 'c q' lb.' is transcribed as 125[‡] lb.

⁵⁹ OED s.v. hundredweight.

⁶⁰ Therefore, when transcribing entries regarding the export of pewter vessels, I have retained the hundredweight (e.g. pro 9 centenis vasorum stanni).

Diplomatic Notes on the Form of the Edition

The transcriptions of Latin documents in this edition observe the conventions of the Monumenta Germaniae Historica. The source texts (and all variants) are reproduced in normal type, while editorial intrusions are printed without exception in italics (e.g. mardre L3, in error). Unambiguous abbreviations are expanded silently, without using square brackets or italics to indicate missing letters. u/v and i/j have been regularized silently to accord with pronunciation: thus vniuersalis in the source text is rendered universalis, while 'i' is transcribed if the letter is pronounced as a vowel (imperii), and 'j' if the letter is pronounced as a consonant, i.e. like the 'y' in 'you' (majestas), even if the source writes imperij and maiestas.

Personal names and place names are transcribed exactly as written and only regularized in the Index of People and Places.

Roman numerals are reproduced as Arabic numerals, except for the sovereign's ordinal (Edwardi ivth). Arabic numerals which occur in the source texts are indicated by bold type. ob' is given as ½d, q' as ¼d and ob' q' as ¾d.

Following the convention in German, I have used a full stop after a number to indicate the ordinal rather than the cardinal, if a number is not written out. Thus, 27. die Januarii (p. 147) is to be understood as vicesimo septimo die Januarii, rather than viginti septem die Januarii.

When transcribing the customs accounts, I have numbered the ships consecutively in italics in square brackets. The individual paragraphs of longer texts have also been numbered in the same way. The reason for this is that the web version of the accounts and accounting materials for the Lancastrian period has no pagination, since the amount of text displayed on the screen depends on the size of the monitor and its resolution. Consequently, cross references – whether within a single document, from one document to another or in the indices – to 'page thus-and-such' are meaningless, and some internal sub-division of the text which can be linked in is unavoidable. Since some scholars will want to use the printed version of the edition and others the web edition, it is necessary to provide a common basis. Thus, if one scholar refers to ship No. 24 in the digital version of a particular account, those using the printed version will be able to find the vessel in question.

All dates and cross references in the source texts have been resolved in italics in square brackets in the text of the edition, rather than in footnotes.

If both the particulars of account and the controlment roll survive, certain variants have been suppressed to avoid inflating the text-critical apparatus. Thus, neither the substitution of 'y' in one text for 'i' in the other (e.g. Willyamson, Williamson) nor middle English plural variants (-es, -is, -ys etc.) have been noted in the apparatus criticus. In general, I have limited the notation of textual variants to those cases in which the variant spelling of a word changes the pronunciation. Thus, the variant federbeds will be noted against fetherbeds, but not fedderbeds or federbedes against federbeds.

Punctuation is artificial and ignores all medieval full stops, commas and so forth. Since Latin is a syntactic language (like German), the eminently useful MGH convention – namely to employ punctuation (according to the pre-reform German rules) to mark up the grammatical structure of the sentence – has been employed here. I have also broken up the stylistically elegant, but utterly incomprehensible run-on Latin sentences of the source texts into manageable units.

Since we are dealing with late medieval administrative Latin, there are some cases which call for local by-laws.

First of all, there are a number of middle English words embedded in the Latin texts which have to be assigned a gender, since they are often modified by an abbreviated adjective (e.g. pro 1 parv' fetherbed). Since the adjectives are written out in a number of instances (pro 1 parvo fetherbed), I have arbitrarily imposed a masculine grammatical gender on all middle English words rather than litter the edition with apostrophes.

Second, the sources themselves are in a muddle as to whether the words custuma and subsidium are singular or plural, and usually avoid the problem by writing cust' and subs'. If a scribe does write out the one or the other word, it is almost inevitable that he will contradict himself, writing custuma in one line and custume a few lines later. This muddle is not merely the result of scribal carelessness or low standards of Latinity. In the fifteenth century, it was possible to differentiate between the collective noun (in the singular) denoting the charges to be paid and the individual sums (in the plural) which each merchant rendered. Even bearing this in mind, however, scribes are simply not consistent. Taking each individual text as a whole, I have done my best to reproduce what the scribe seemed to be thinking.

Third, the problem of the hundredweight is exceedingly vexed. While it is well known that a hundredweight can correspond to 100 lb., 112 lb. or 120 lb. avoirdupois,⁶¹ there is no way to know which of these three values applies when a customer writes c lb. or fractions and multiples thereof. Just occasionally, when the particulars of account and the controlment roll have survived, some insight is possible, for instance if one of the two records a particular merchant's exports of pewter vessels as di' c lb. vasorum stanni and the other the same goods as lvj lb. vasorum stanni.⁶² But these cases are far too rare to inspire confident generalizing. Consequently, I have decided to leave the matter unsolved, marking the text in such a way that the reader can easily reconstruct the entry. The most common notation of weight – multiples of 'c' – has not been marked up. Thus 'iij^c lb.' is simply transcribed as 300 lb. If the thousand sign was used, the number is marked with a cross: thus, 'ij M^l lb.' is transcribed as 2000[†] lb. (but xx^c lb. as 2000 lb.) If the sign for one half is used, this is indicated by an asterisk: thus, 'di' c lb.' is transcribed as 50* lb. (but 'l lb.' as 50 lb.) And finally, if the sign for one quarter is used, this is indicated by a double cross: thus, 'c q' lb.' is transcribed as 125[‡] lb.

 20 NOV. 1477 – 9 JULY 1478

Particulars of account of Peter Draper and Henry Davers for the issues of the petty customs in London in the period from 20 Nov. 1477 to 13 July 1478 together with the controlment roll of Thomas Fowler for the same period

L1 TNA: PRO, E122/194/22. Original particulars of account bound in Exchequer style (19 membranes; no contemporaneous numbering of the import membranes (m 1-8) is visible; the export membranes (m 9-18) must have been numbered in Roman numerals in the upper right hand corner, but this is only visible on m 11 (4), m 13 (6), m 14 (7), m 15 (8) and m 17 (10)). Parchment. Unsealed. In many places the parchment is worn to the point of illegibility. The auditor has placed a dot (a) above each merchant's customs charge, (b) above each item and charge in the summation of the issues at the foot of each side of the membranes and (c) above each item and charge in the summation of the issues of the entire account on m 19.

L2 TNA: PRO, E122/194/23. Original controlment roll bound in Exchequer style (17 membranes; the membranes were contemporaneously numbered in the upper right hand corner of the membrane (sometimes hidden in the stitching, othertimes not), being subdivided first into imports and exports and then – within those categories – into pre- and post Easter (22 Mar. 1478), the pre-Easter imports and exports being numbered in Roman numerals and the post-Easter in Arabic numerals: 1 (m 1 beginning of imports); 2 (m 2); 3 (m 3); 1 (m 4 imports from 23 Mar.); 2 (m 5); 3 (m 6); 4 (m 7); 1 (m 8 beginning of exports); 2 (m 9); 3 (m 10); 4 (m 11); 5 (m 12); (m 13 was not numbered); (m 14 - not numbered - exports from 24 Mar.); 2 (m 15); 3 (m 16); 4 (m 17)). INDEX OF PEOPLE AND PLACES

In accordance with current usage, the first names of Englishmen and -women have been standardized to their current forms. Thus Willelmus in the accounts is indexed as William and so forth. Italian and Spanish first names are given in the 'ablative' (Andrea, Beaceo, Roderigo rather than Andreas, Beaceus, Roderigus). The first names of other foreigners, who are largely Dutch and German, are normally indexed in something approaching their modern forms, e.g. Johannes, Jacob, Herman, Hugo rather than Hugh (which would indicate an Englishman). However, it is not possible to be entirely consistent. Take, as an example, Willelmus. Is one to index Hanseatic merchants as Wilhelm, but Dutch merchants and shippers as Willem or Wim and the Dinanters as Guillaume? To do so would simply be to introduce incredible confusion, entirely leaving aside the intractable problem of distinguishing between merchants of Dutch and Hanseatic origin. Therefore, in a number of cases I have indexed Dutch and German merchants' first names in the current English form: e.g. Paul, William, Laurence, Andrew, Henry.

Family names have been grouped, where possible, in the index, with cross references leading the reader from the variants to the main entry, which records all variant spellings in parentheses. However, given the inconsistency of the customers' scribes, I have found it impossible to resolve all doubts and have therefore tried to steer a middle course between the splitters and the lumpers. There are cases where there can be no doubt that divergent spellings denote one and the same merchant. For instance, the tunnage and poundage customers record imports of iron and nails by one Sauncho Surasso in the ship of Peter Alenya on 1 July 1463 (p. 143), but the petty customers recorded the same freight in the same ship on the same day as belonging to Sancho Surnesse (p. 98). On the other hand, there are cases where I am all but certain that variant spellings denote one person, yet am troubled by nagging doubts. For instance, the skipper variously recorded as Bowen (Baven, Bave) Naytson (Naitson, Neytson, Noytson) is almost certainly identical with the skipper recorded as Bave Nautson. But enough doubt remained that I recorded the names separately and referred back and forth ('cf. Nautson').

The order of the family names in the index is phonological, so that, for instance, 'y' is alphabetized as 'i'. Any additional information not given in the accounts themselves appears in square brackets.

Place names are in small capitals.

INDEX OF SUBJECTS

The index is structured so as to serve as a glossary. Hence, the main entry is under the word as it appears in the sources (zinziber), and a cross-reference leads the reader from the modern English term to the main entry (ginger see zinziber). If a term is in Middle English, the plural form is also given (e.g. alle hafte, -s); if in Latin, the genitive (e.g. allec, ecis). More than one reference per page is not noted.
